The State Debt-A Convention. In reply to an interrogatory contained in the following letter, we have to say that there is nothing is the Constitution of the United States which would prevent the Legislature of a state from assessing the taxes upon the several counties and cities instead of directly upon the tax-payers, thus getting rid of the Tenn., surrendered its charter as a city some years ago and was by law converted into a "taxing-district" as a means of getting rid of a debt which the United States courts were rendering so oppressive to her that she could not longer stand the tax. There is mothing new in the point raised by "Farmer." It has been discussed again and again in Virginia:

Editor of Dispatch: Sir.—As the people cut-worms of the Treasury." Memphis, in Virginia:

Editor of Dispatch: Sir,—As the people of Virginia will vote this year on the question of a State convention to amend the Constitution of Virginia year will confer a great favor by giving your cominon in your Sunday Issue whether it would be consistent with the United States Constitution to after the financial system of Virginiase as to cause all tux-payers to be indebted to their respective caises, counties, and towns for the revenue of the State in money, to be collected by the cities, counties, and towns for the year and all II necessary), and the same paid into the Tacasary of the State.

This measure might induce the creditors of Verginas to compromise their claims on debt question out of polities forever. If this case at he accommisshed, then in view of the present contention and confusion be-tween the State and the bondholders it would be better to meet the receipt of coupons, even by increased taxation, and let the bonds of the State rest and rot to the end of time.

The people, especially the farmers, are being severely pressed and oppressed by "protection for the sake of protection," millionaires, monopolists, and trusts, &c., and they are wide awake for some measure of self-defence.
